

A Letter to the Accumulating Class - Hey. Let's talk like adults.

Hey.
Let's talk like adults.

Hey. Oligarchs, tech-bros, top-brass and other illustrious members of the Accumulating Class.

Alright, we admit it, you won.

You have all the means and all the power and you are in control.

You hold the dashboards, the cap tables, the land, the levers.

You can get a meeting anywhere, any day, anytime.

From where you sit, tightening a few risk knobs and hiring one more “head of something important” can make almost any problem magically disappear.

We get it.

You hold all the cards.

But look.

Here's the thing.

There's a problem your dashboard can't solve because the problem is the dashboard.

The growth-at-all-costs Regime of Accumulation you are about to inherit runs on Disconnection, from your own full Self, from your families and children, from the people who build your wealth, and from the ecosystems that make your survival possible.

It doesn't matter how much gold you gild your banquet hall with.

It doesn't matter how many yachts you have.

You have been damaged and disconnected by Toxic Socialization.

You are an island in a dried up sea.

You are a mere shadow of what you can truly be.

You are no better than anyone else.

Your blood is not blue.

You are not chosen by God.

You don't have a special immune system.

When the environment around you collapses, your bunkers are not going to save you. You'll die just like the rest of us.

Your brain is already degrading.

Just ask Kim K.

In any case, all you really have is an empty and pretentious delusion of superior status; however now, with the accelerating collapse of your complex systems, the pretensions are being stripped away.

You may have started as creator, but for the sake of silver and gold you have become a destroyer of worlds.

You feel it.

Of course, you're not a villain. You're not a bad person. Not really. Nobody is born bad. You are simply playing a character in a story you didn't write. The story says humans are cattle, life is a binary, winners deserve more, and loss is a moral failure. It's an old script, an ancient script, but it's glitching. Whether you like it or not, it is reaching the end of the road. Supply chains snap, talent burns out, people refuse to work, weather goes feral, harvests dry up, or are flooded, all while politics continues as childish cosplay, but with advanced AI weaponry.

It's not all you, but you are the biggest part of it.

You back extraction, accumulation, and consumerism while funding the AI tech you believe will give you domination over everything.

You build space ships and landing pads and opine of future utopias on Mars where you can sip Martian Ale, gazing with fondness back at your scorched and flooded “gift” to humanity.

But you’re not gonna get there.

Breaking planetary bindings and setting up a settlement on a dead planet is a lot harder than you think and now, with what is beginning to look like a free-fall in global health, you’ve run out of time. You no longer have the brain power to get the job done.

You know it. You are doom-prepping, “just in case.”

Of course, doom is not inevitable.

You have resources (the money and the media power) to fix it.

But you won’t, clearly, because you can’t.

And why not?

Because like a deer in the headlamps, you are stuck, frozen and unable to move.

But listen up, dudes.

Sit up straight now.

Snap out of it.

You need to cut the proverbial Gordian Knot before it is too late.

Here is what you need to hear.

1. There is no “after the exit.” The ecosystem doesn’t care about your cap table. Your legacy fund won’t buy you shelter from the coming storms and no moat is gonna protect you from the viral swirl you’ve set off. Unless you change course, your current trajectory is a tragic one.
2. There is no uploading out of this. You are embedded in systems, soil, and soul just like the rest of us. You will feel the impact and so will your grandchildren. That is your legacy.
3. There is a solution, and that is Connection, for everyone, not just you. Connection is not soft. Connection is the upgrade you falsely believe can be achieved through technology (Noble, 1999). Raising what we might call your Consciousness Quotient (CQ) by engaging in what we call Connection Practice increases intelligence, perception, foresight, and ethical range. Connection disciplines attention, aligns action with what’s right, heals psychic structures shattered by Toxic Socialization, and kills the need for performative dominance. Spread that out over a few billion people motivated to change and you have all the expertise and labour you need to “magically” fix everything that you broke.

Here is what you need to do.

1. Pivot now. Let's be honest here. The story you are in is failing in a spectacular way. But you can help save the day. The most valuable superpower you have right now is the ability to shift capital away from brands and talent that support domination and destruction and towards those that support authentic healing and reconnection. In other words, use your means (the means of production, the means of communication, the means of education) to shift global understanding and change global priorities. It's not rocket science. It's not that hard.
2. Do it in a proper frame. I promise you. The old frame, the frame that says that you need to stay in control and that the only important thing in life is to accumulate ever more won't work here. You need to change the frame. That's both hard and not hard. Hard to get it done right, but simple to get started.
3. Take your first step, which is simple. Adopt a No-Violence Rule (no harm to bodies (including your children), minds, or habitats). Once you adopt that rule, no action that you take should cause any harm. That's going to put some strict limits on what you can do, obviously, but that's the way it has to be. If an initiative requires physical, psychological, or environmental harm, pencil it out. Full stop. If "offset it later" is the business case, you don't have a business case, you have a PR plan.

Once you've taken that first step there are other things you can do.

Number one, meet People's Needs. Your purpose moving forward isn't to bloat your bank account, it is to contribute to the Seven Essential Needs of all people, particularly your employees, but generally everybody. If you didn't get it, read it again.

Number two, and this is really important, implement an immediate reduction of workloads. Forty hours plus commute is a killer routine that strips life of life and robs humans of the thing they need most right now, their creativity. Don't pretend you can't afford it. Take a breath. Take a step back. Get it done.

Number three, implement a UBI. Doing so will allow people to survive outside your toxic system and, most importantly, outside your control. This will allow them to heal and reconnect which will then unleash an unstoppable creative force that will transform this entire planet.

Number four, give it back in spades. I'm not talking about endowing a building here. I'm talking about real things, like

- Helping to repair the things that you've broken by, for example, donating a % of revenue dedicated to direct repair and restitution (peoples and places).
- Creating healthier workplaces by baking in authentic healing and Connection Practices organization-wide. I'm not talking about so-called "positive" psychology here. I'm talking Humanistic, Transpersonal, and Eupsychian, when, with your funding help, we found it.
- Moving from patronage to partnership. Philanthropy that names buildings but doesn't change budgets is optics. Fund the boring, measurable stuff that actually transforms thinking and heals systems: community land trusts, worker ownership transitions, public-interest infrastructure, regenerative agriculture, trauma-informed schools, and new systems of thinking. Aim your capital where it supports human development and the actuation of full human potential, not where it buys another gilded gala table.

- Make truth a feature, not a risk. End the NDAs that muzzle harm narratives. Publicly publish your misses and what you're changing. When people see you choose repair over reputation, you gain credibility and collect accountability points.
- Taking the “enough is enough” pledge. Decide, out loud, enough is enough. Enough money, enough house, enough carry, enough status. Healing is possible, but a bigger bank account won't help. Cap your personal burn. Route the overflow into a Repair and Re-connection Fund with transparent dashboards. You won't become austere; you'll become free.

You may be thinking, “Sounds idealistic. Show me the ROI. Fair. In the context of the polycrisis, the return is survival, of you, your children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, all the way on down, not to mention fewer lawsuits, fewer labour revolts, fewer activist campaigns, fewer climate-related write-downs, fewer stress-filled days, fewer sleepless nights, and so on and so on and so on.

Peace and happiness are the deeper return and as you know, you certainly can't buy that.

In closing, let's be real.

You didn't write the story you were born into. Somebody much smarter than you did that long ago. But you do have a choice. Keep playing from the old script and the game's over. It has happened before, it will happen again. Change the script however and you become one of the rarest things ever, a leader who uses power to heal and connect. A leader for the ages. A leader that even your grandchildren will be proud of.

It's your choice.

Glossary of Theoretical Terms

Disconnection

Link: <https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/Disconnection>

Disconnection is both external and internal: externally, it's the break between a person and their family, society, and the natural world; internally, it's the disconnection of the bodily/psychological self from Spiritual Ego and, more broadly, from the Fabric of Consciousness. This disconnection lowers Consciousness Quotient and erodes moral capacity, intelligence, empathy, and creativity.

Fabric of Consciousness

Link: https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/Fabric_of_Consciousness

The Fabric of Consciousness is the ground of all being: a vast, living field of Consciousness that underlies and permeates the universe. It's the “big C” Consciousness that later differentiates into individual streams, facets, and monadic units (Spiritual Egos).

The Old One

Link: https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/The_Old_One

“The Old One” is Albert Einstein’s phrase for the Fabric of Consciousness—the intelligent, ordering principle behind reality. In LP/SP usage it names that deeper Consciousness while also gesturing at Einstein’s insistence that this “Old One” does not play dice with the universe.

Toxic Socialization

Link: https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/Toxic_Socialization

Toxic Socialization is the dominant, harmful pattern of child-rearing and socialization on the planet, characterized by unmet essential needs, violence, chaos, indoctrination, and distorted attachment. It systematically produces Disconnection, Toxic Burden, psychological damage, and reduced capacity for Connection and flourishing.

Connection

Link: <https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/Connection>

Connection is the experiential linking of the Bodily Ego to Spiritual Ego and to the Fabric of Consciousness. It can occur spontaneously or be reliably induced via Connection Practices, and higher, more stable Connection is associated with increased CQ, insight, moral clarity, and human flourishing.

Consciousness Quotient (CQ)

Link: https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/Consciousness_Quotient

Consciousness Quotient is a theoretical 0–100 scale for how much Monadic Consciousness is currently present in a physical unit—illustrated by the “Water Glass” metaphor (0 = empty, 100 = full). Higher CQ corresponds to stronger Connection, expanded awareness, better perception, and greater ethical range.

No-Violence Rule

Link: https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/No-Violence_Rule

The No-Violence Rule is a hard constraint that says: no violence in, no violence out—no physical, psychological, or environmental harm allowed in the space or the practice. It goes beyond personal non-violence to include refusing to permit or collude with the violent acts of others in one’s sphere, creating the safety needed for healing and Connection.

Seven Essential Needs

Link: https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/Seven_Essential_Needs

The Seven Essential Needs are the core needs a physical unit must have met to grow up healthy, whole, and fully realized. They cluster into outer needs (physiological, cognitive, environmental, emotional, psychological) and inner needs (Alignment and Connection); chronic failure to meet them drives pathology, Toxic Socialization, and social breakdown.

Connection Practices

Link: https://spiritwiki.lightningpath.org/index.php/Connection_Practices

Connection Practices are the structured procedures and techniques used to reliably initiate, deepen, and integrate Connection with Spiritual Ego and the Fabric of Consciousness (e.g., specific meditations, breathwork, ritual, guided psychedelic work). On the LP they're organized as the 3Ps—Preparation, Procedure, and Processing—and often work in tandem with Connection Appliances and Supplements.